THE RIGHT SPIRIT

By Ferdinand M. Isserman

The following is an excerpt from a letter I received from a minister of the United Church of Canada. It is a beautiful expression of religious fellowship, which I desire to pass on to the readers of the Canadian Jewish Review. "I am a student of the Old Testament, skilled in the Hebrew language; and my best friend is the Man of Nazareth, your countryman. We have, therefore, much in common, and I look forward with keen anticipation to working side by side with you in the spirit of religious fellowship for the uplift of humanity, and the betterment of our Canadian citizenship."

SOME LIGHT ON THE KLAN

The following document is on record in the courts of Toronto, and reveals clearly and unmistakably the motives behind the organization of the Ku Klux Klan in Canada.

"This Instrument of Agreement made and entered into December 1, 1924, by and between R. L. Cowan, of Toronto, Ontario, J. H. Hawkins, of Newport, Va., and C. Lewis Fowler, of New York City.

"Witnesseth that all three parties named above agree to and hereby enter into covenant to launch and to operate the Knights of Ku Klux Klan of Canada and that they agree to launch the work on the 1st of January, 1925.

"That the three parties named above agree that they shall be the first Imperial Officers of the organization and they shall name the other officers as occasion shall demand and they shall be as the three originating officers, the Provincial Kloncillum or official governing body of the Order. They shall be the controlling body and shall occupy the following offices in the body: R. L. Cowan, Imperial Wizard (president), J. H. Hawkins, Imperial Kliaiff (vice-president) and chief of the staff, and C. Lewis Fowler, Imperial Kligrapp (secretary), and they shall be equal in all matters pertaining to the work, but the laws of the organization shall set forth specifically the official obligations and work of each. They agree that they shall be as one in the launching of the movement.

"That the three parties hereto agree to be equally responsible in launching the movement financially and that they each shall take care of his pro rata part of the expenses incidentally in setting up the organization and that they shall share equally in the income after the organization is set up, determining the salaries to be paid both themselves and to all other Imperial officers.

"That C. Lewis Fowler is instructed and authorized to proceed to Canada the 1st of January and to take such steps, make such moves as shall be necessary in setting up the organization. In said capacity he shall act for all three and his acts are to be official in law until he is joined by all three parties in the work. He is to be paid as to his expenses and is to be allowed a reasonable sum each week for his services in representing the other two parties in the initial work. He agrees to inform both the absent parties in detail about all developments. To keep an accurate account of all expenses and expenditures and also all income if any until the three shall meet to perfect the organization. He is authorized to use any income in helping to defray expenses until the three shall meet for the permanent organization and to keep an accurate account of same.

"That this instrument is executed in triplicate and is binding from December 1st, 1924, and until superceded by a new agreement.

"In witness whereof we all parties to this agreement hereunto set our hand and seal the above day and date mentioned.

Signatures,
Richard L. Cowan,
J. H. Hawkins,
Lewis Fowler."

At last we have a statement on black and white that men behind the organization of the Klan had mercenary motives, and were themselves to be financially the gainers by its institution. It is, of course, most interesting to note that two of the leading officials of the Klan in Canada are to be Americans, and Americans planned to come to a British Dominion to foster loyalty to the Empire on the part of Canadians. It is indeed most tragic that men should traffic in religious prejudices and should seek gain by stirring up racial dissensions and animosities. Such spirit is neither Christian nor British, and we hope and feel that the masses of Canada will not be misled by the pretentions of Klan organizers. We feel sorry for the souls of men who are ready and willing to profit by setting man against man and neighbour against neighbour.

BOXING AND THE SYNAGOGUE

By Herbert J. Samuel

The following is clipped from the Montreal "Star" of last Saturday. It was not found, as it might well have been, in the "Passing Hour" column of humour, but in the regular news columns as a serious item.

Boxing to Aid Fund of West End Synagogue

An assault-at-arms will be held under the auspices of the congregation of The Beth Hamedrash-Hgodle Synagogue, Notre Dame Street West, will hold a boxing show on Thursday night, May 27, at St. Henri Town Hall, St. Henri Square, 1940 St. James Street West. The proceeds of the show will go towards the aid of the synagogue. Jack Rogers, the well-known local manager of fighters, will line up a strong card of bouts, in which some of the best local talent will show.

All the fighters who will appear have offered their services free. This is the first time in Montreal a Jewish institution will try to get aid through holding a boxing show and a big crowd is expected to be present.

By the time these lines appear in The Review the impressive ceremony will be part of the history of the Montreal Jewish community. It is hoped that by that time the enthusiasts will all be resting comfortably and doing as well as can be expected after having "quit themselves like men" in "fighting the battle of the Lord," and that the treasurer of the congregation will be fully satisfied. After all, if Reform Jews dance and play Mah Jongg for their Temple there is no reason why Orthodox Jews should not fight for their Beth Hamedrash, only we hope the boxers will all wear yarmulkes.

There is no foundation for the rumour that the rabbi of the Temple was invited to open the proceedings with the popular hymn "Fight the good fight with all thy might," and we have not, at the moment of writing, been able to substantiate the report that a leading Orthodox rabbi was asked to pronounce the benediction "Shehecheyonu" over this unprecedented event in Jewry. There is also a suspicion that the wish is father to the thought in the suggestion that one item on the programme would be a bout between the Parnass and the Shammas. We may hope that the manager of the show will have no difficulty in settling which of the boxers are to have "Shishi" on the programme.

The real feature of the event which is sure to have attracted large crowds of the faithful, lies in the novelty of fighting in the interests of a synagogue with boxing gloves instead of with fists and chairs. One can also see in this unique occasion the possibility of a valuable opportunity for a struggling congregation. Boxing bouts might be arranged at which free seats should be provided for all delinquent members, who should be compelled in turn to face the victors, or else pay up their dues. Perhaps, too, an enterprising Parnass might secure an income for his shule by auctioning off a number of kibbudim, consisting of standing up to the champion boxer. A boxing committee could then become a valuable asset to many a congregation.

UNIVERSITY SUCCESSES

It is most gratifying to see the large number of Jewish names in the lists of successes just published by the universities of Canada. The old Jewish tradition of keenness for education still flourishes. We have not yet lost that. Many students have done brilliantly, in many cases out of proportion to their numbers. We wish them all success in the careers upon which they are now embarking. We hope that they will not be unmindful of the fact that their mental endowments have come to them as the heritage of their race. It is not by accident that Jewish students are so conspicuous in the honour and pass lists of the universities. It is due to the self sacrifice of parents, who often deprive themselves of the barest necessities of life that their offspring may have the opportunity for education. It is due to the unparalleled devotion of the poor and often ignorant Jewish mother who distils into her very life blood, which is her soul, and which the infant suckles as milk at her breast, her fervent desire that her child shall become a great scholar. It is due to the generations of ancestors who sat poring over their books, unmindful of the world and regardless of their most elementary bodily needs, who, crushed and confined physically and materially, were yet emperors in the domain of the intellect.

And let it not be forgotten that the successes of our Jewish students are due to no small extent to the equality of opportunity which this land holds out to all, regardless of creed.

The universities of Canada are for the most part maintained by privately subscribed endowments, or at least are dependent upon private munificence for much of their work, and particularly for the rewards they hold out to students in

The Book of Knowledge

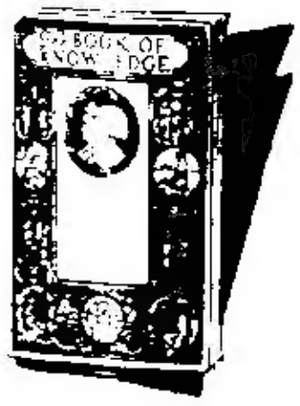
Captures the Child's Mind

SO captivating is this great and original work that children absorb with little effort the profound truths and the great facts of the world of knowledge, while reading its delightful pages, and looking at its thousands of striking educational pages.

STEP BY STEP: There are eighteen great departments in The Book of Knowledge—nature, science, history, biography, literature, etc. They contain the important interesting and authentic knowledge of the world, charmingly told and pictured. The explanations are clear and vivid, and the young learner is led so gently, from the easy to the more complex, that he does not feel the gradual upward climb. Boys and girls love this book. They read it for hours at a time completely absorbed.

Special Confirmation Offer

THE confirmation gift that will be most pleasing, lasting and useful to your child is the gift of knowledge, the satisfaction of his eager curiosity about this complex world in which he lives. Do you know any subject about which your child has not asked you a dozen questions? Let him ask as many as he likes, and be sure they are answered correctly. If you discourage your child's curiosity, you will injure his mind, and the bright boy or girl becomes stupid or indifferent. The Book of Knowledge is the simplest and most natural method of helping the child to educate himself. It answers every question in plain and easy language, draws out the mental powers, quickens the imagination and teaches the child to think for himself.



15,000 Pictures. Knowlege at a Glance.

There are 15,000 illustrations in The Book of Knowledge, many of them in color and in gravure, presenting a brilliant panorama of the world's knowledge. Every picture is a short-cut to a fact. Lessons learned through the eye, in this easy, fascinating way, can never be forgotten.

What would The Book of Knowledge do for your child? Would you like to see for yourself? Use the coupon below, in asking for details of the special confirmation offer, and for the new booklet of sample pages and pictures.

"Doubtless, f.f.c., you were enchanted to observe in a fashionable shul last Shabuoth a practical exposition of a sublime faith in the Fatherhood of God, the Brotherhood of Man and the Olympian Patronage of Wily Politicians. What an upsoaring in religious exaltation, what lyrical flight! That is a real way to welcome neophytes into the mystic portals of modern Synthetic Judaism—Poetic Judaism in action! Well done, O thrice noble and learned and wise sons of Joseph Caro! Bravo, ye heirs to the Prophets, including Him of recent fame who is now considered by the Best People to be the greatest of them all. I, too, believe, as Disraeli should have, that Judaism must be made safe for the Conservative Party."—L.M.G.

Another confirmation time has come and gone and many rabbis who write in English-Jewish papers have revealed by their comments, before and after the ceremony, just how out of hand this ceremony is getting to be. It was intended to be simple, beautiful, touching, etc., a tremulous time. Until lately in this jazz decade the rabbis were unctious about it, apparently satisfied that it emphasized properly an important day. The rabbis seemed willing enough to encourage a good, strengthening wash of sentimentality over the whole. Now that confirmation appears standardized as a staged performance there creeps a note of anxiety into the rabbinical voice and doubt is expressed as to the real value of what has been built up. To draw a picture of the rabbinate standing, helpless, in a procession of georgette crepe and real lace, amid such ruins as the costly gifts that Jewish children receive when they attain their religious majority, would be to size up the lay religious bankruptcy that confirmation puts the seal on yearly.

This condition is not exclusive with Reform Jewish temples because confirmation is no longer exclusively Reform. The Orthodox laugh at the Reform stew and fuss, ostentation and extravagance and lack of religious feeling at confirmation, is bound to be hollow. The Orthodox have their bar-mitzvahs and their inconsistent confirmation celebrations. A mother or daughter may be Orthodox and the man of the family may belong to a shul but that does not mean that feminine ears are going to be closed to the frou-frou of silk that makes of confirmation both the summer fashion opening and a nice finish to the synagogal season of worship and prayer. So, be he Orthodox or Reform, the confirmant says a pièce and "makes a speech" (written by someone else), although his voice may be nearly drowned out by the chatter over the cutting of the ices, by the clatter of the tea cups. As an appeal to the mind and soul the day works out as a better celebration of the ability to purchase whatever there is to see, eat and wear in this inventive age.

In a biting editorial on confirmation Rabbi M. N. A. Cohen, of the Bnai Brith Messenger, of Los Angeles, scores the parents "who parade their children with glee before crowded auditoria, so that their scholarly essays and oratorical pyrotechnics may warm the affections of these indulgent fathers and mothers and provoke the admiration of hysterial and overcome relatives and friends. Too many parents are a distinct menace to the religious health of their children, and this is as true of the church as it is of the synagogue. What is the use of confirmation when the home is of the old Mother Hubbard type? when the home is the graveyard of religion? when nothing is seen or done in the home to help the boys and girls along to a more wholesome, appreciation and observance of their respective religion? We do not intend that the home should be gloomy, but our Jewish (sic) parents need not select the Sabbath and Festival eves and days for social affairs, and this applies to both Orthodox and Reform and all the other varieties of Jews and Jewesses. And what is true of confirmation is likewise the case with bar-mitzvah. It is all mostly a farce. Now is the time to look the thing squarely in the eye and make up the mind as to just what. Are our rabbis afraid that they are going to hurt feelings if they come right out with the truth? Then we do not need rabbis; in fact under such circumstances we would be better off without them."

This rabbi is one of many who deplore the situation. A useless question may be asked of them: Where were they and what were they seeing while this condition was coming to a head? f.f.c.

Here's a way to rout Spring Fever

To ward off that lazy, overfed feeling we call "spring fever," serve more light, easily digestible foods.

Balance the diet with more green vegetables, more uncooked foods, fresh fruits, crisp salads, frozen desserts. All of these are very healthful—especially needed this month.

It is easy to plan ideal spring meals with the help of ice and a good refrigerator. They keep food at its best—fresh, wholesome, nutritive, and maintain its original flavour.

You should have a good refrigerator, kept well filled with ice—for true economy, better health and better living.

the form of prizes, scholarships and fellowships. While we insist that facilities for education are the inalienable birthright of every child, we must honorably recognize that the facilities of which we are taking so much laudable advantage exist because they have been provided by men and women of large heart and noble vision who, in creating and supporting the Universities of Canada, placed no restrictions in the way of any capable student. The very prizes that the Jewish students are priding themselves in carrying off are prizes that were founded by Christians.

The Jewish graduate therefore owes a double debt of gratitude to the race that has given him his intellectual endowment, and to the race that has made possible the development and exercise of that endowment. The Jewish graduate of a Canadian University should be a powerful agency for the promotion of good understanding between Jew and Gentile, for he is the child of what one might call a spiritual union. His aim should be to reproduce in himself the harmonization of the fine qualities of both his spiritual parents. What could not our Jewish graduates do, whether as professional or as business men to raise the standards of the life in which they play a part? The value that the Jewish community should be able to derive from its many intellectual men and women should be much greater than it is. And the large majority of the Jewish alumnae of our Canadian educational institutions should be much more of a credit to their almae matres than they are. There are, of course, notable exceptions, but not really enough to make them anything but exceptions. In Montreal and in Toronto and in Winnipeg there are successful Jewish professional men who could well afford a donation of five or ten thousand dollars for the endowment of some research fund or exhibition at the University which equipped them for their success in life. Let them be worth $45,000 instead of $50,000, or $90,000 instead of $100,000. The difference, handed over to the university, would be enough to rescue their names from the oblivion that must be their inevitable fate if they make the massing of dollars their chief aim. It would create for them an undying memory. Their children would perhaps have a few dollars less to inherit, but, in place thereof, they would enjoy the grace of an imperishable name that would stimulate endless generations to devote their talents to the advancement of knowledge and the bettering of humanity.

The achieving of such honorable immortality is not reserved to professional men only. Most of the endowments of the universities have come from enlightened business men who have felt inspired to do something for education. The successes gained by Jewish students at the universities year after year do shed lustre on the Jewish name. But nothing could compare with the distinction that would come to the Jewish name if the universities that deserve so well of us were allowed to share in some of the Jewish material success in life.

Betty Blythe in "She," Sir Rider Haggard's immortal fantasy of the white and wonderful African queen. The most daring scene ever enacted for the movie camera is the scene in the picturization of Sir Rider Haggard's "She," where Betty Blythe steps into the pillar of flame, divested of every earthly raiment, and her form is actually consumed before your very eyes. Here is a rare combination of exquisite beauty and the peak of sensationalism.

who graduated with honours at the Ontario College of Pharmacy, was awarded the John Roberts gold medal. This is the first time a Jewish student has gained this prize. Mr. Breslin has two brothers, Dr. Saul Breslin, dentist, and Dr. L. J. Breslin physician.

From out of the mass of mediocre pictures comes the stupendous attraction, "She," which will go down in the annals of motion picture history as a step ahead of anything so far presented. Weird, fantastic settings, yet of wondrous scenic beauty, form a background for the love story of the most beautiful woman the world has ever known. Betty Blythe is the star as "She" and her support are the favorite Carlyle Blackwell and Mary Odette. Five acts of vaudeville.

Editor
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

D. M. Mackay has taken exception to the views I expressed in my article on "The Negation of the Constitution" two weeks ago. I cannot admit that his criticism has altered my view on the moral aspect of the Peace River election case. It is unfortunate when an innocent person has to suffer and pay the penalty for the crime of another, and that person is always entitled to sympathy But there is a higher justice than the question of the financial one which Mr Mackay stresses.

The ballot is a sacred instrument of democracy. Tamper with it, and democracy falls to pieces. Unless it is most jealously preserved from the slightest suggestion of abuse, we might just as well resort to the methods of such countries as Poland, Italy and Soviet Russia. All are alike in their disregard of the rights of democracy.

We hear far too much in Canada about dishonesty at elections. Not all of it is true. Very likely only a small amount of it is true. But undoubtedly some of it is. And it is a bad feature of public life.

The member for the Peace River constituency should have refrained from occupying his seat, and should have immediately placed himself in the hands of the electors, until the question of his election had been absolutely decided, and he had been confirmed by the electors. The matter should never have been disposed of by a parliamentary technicality over the rules of order. Had the member taken that step he would have demonstrated that the integrity of the ballot was the prime consideration.

That is what would have happened, I am sure, in England. No one ever doubts the cleanness of an election in England. Candidates sometimes descend to ungentlemanly tactics, but the ballot box is sacred. Irrespective of personal sacrifices and political expediency such an election would have been declared void immediately over there. The injustice of the situation here is that impure elections can somehow be defended.

Herbert J. Samuel.

Montreal, May 23, 1926.

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

The editorial contributed by Rabbi Isserman, in the May 21 issue of the REVIEW, merits well-deserved praise. It presents an excellent summary of the relations between Jew and Gentile in the matter of their respective religions. The editorial paints a vivid word-picture of the hopes of the Christians in their effort to convert Jews to Christianity and of the reasons that make such an effort, though it be ever so sincere impossible of attaining fruitful results. Rabbi Isserman's editorial will go far to make clear to Christians of all shades the uselessness of trying to convert a people who have defied conversion to any creed whatsoever for so many centuries and through so much mental and physical suffering. It is a hopeless task that Sir Leon Levison has undertaken.

Your two worthy contributing editors, Rabbi Samuel and Rabbi Isserman, should be encouraged to take up and discuss world-wide questions, particularly those affecting Canada and the British Empire; and not only to deal with Jewish problems all-important to us as they are. Let them discuss and express their convictions on all Jewish matters of importance by all means, but not to the exclusion of the vital and burning problems touching Canada and the Empire. For we are Canadians first, British second, and of some particular race or creed third.

By discussing Canadian and Imperial affairs, moreover, the REVIEW makes a much wider appeal to Canadians of all races, Christian as well as Jewish; to all those who have at heart the welfare of Canada and the Empire.

No Canadian should be ashamed of being called Imperialist. We can be true Canadians and staunch Imperialists at one and the same time. If a love for England and all it stands for: for its language, its literature, its history, its exalted ideals, its sane progress through the ages, its enormous power for good in this world, makes one an Imperialist, then there is no greater imperialist living than the writer.

The whole world is looking up to England for her lead in all efforts to make this world a better place to live in, and Canadians should not be behindhand in that example. England, through many centuries has shown that she deserves the respect and the awe with which the world regards her. Canada, and all those living within this beautiful land, should strive with might and main to enhance the exalted position of the Mother Country. Let us be more broad-minded in our dealings with the Motherland, and in our associations with her, let us not treat her as some foreign power, but as our own blood. We should remember that England has world-wide problems constantly facing her, and it is by patience and a faithful desire to aid that we may be a help and not a hindrance to her.

Rabbi Samuel and Rabbi Isserman have a noble duty to perform, for the pen is a great fosterer of national ideals.

Yours sincerely,
S. A. KORENBERG.

AVON RIVER POWER DEAL; CALLING IN BOND ISSUE

Notices have been sent out announcing the calling of an issue of $250,000 of first mortgage 6½ per cent. bonds of the Avon River Power Company, of Nova Scotia. These bonds will be paid off on July 1 next, although the date of maturity is July 1, 1953 the end of a thirty-year term.

The calling of this issue may be accepted as a preliminary step towards a new issue that will be made to finance important extensions to the Avon River Power Company's plant. Like most hydro-electric power developments, this will be of interest far beyond the bounds of the province in which it is located, for it indicates, as have recent ones in the Province of Quebec and the contract by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario with International Paper Company for a new supply of power, new industrial developments.

The existing bond issue of Avon River Power Company was offered just two years ago to finance a plant of 2,500 horsepower capacity which supplies a large section of the eastern and middle portion of the Annapolis Valley. Early this year the company acquired the properties of the Windsor Electric Light Company, and on July 1 next will extend its territory by the absorption of the Gaspereaux River Light, Heat and Power Company. In addition to these developments the Avon River Power Company will start at once on the installation of 3,000 additional horsepower at a second power site two miles further up the river. A dam has already been provided and sample water is guaranteed through the storage facilities created by a chain of nine lakes. The new block of power will be available for the industrial progress of a community covering an area of some 200 square miles.

As has been the case with so many of the power enterprises of Canada, the associations of those who are connected with the Avon River Power Company indicate a broadening out of the field now covered by the present developed power. The President of Avon River, W. H. Chase, of Wolfville, Nova Scotia, is a director also of the Eastern Trust Company, the Trinidad Electric Company and Porto Rico Railways, Limited. Mr. Chase has acquired a power site on the St. Croix River and he and his associates now control the power situation between the Gaspereaux River and the City of Halifax. Further developments in this direction also may be anticipated.

JEWISH TENANTS HAVE LAUGH ON LANDLORD

Not since their landlord spent ten days in the workhouse have the tenants at No. 52 Pitt Street, New York City, had such a good laugh as they had one day last week.

It was on the landlord again. Joseph Eisen is his name, and Magistrate Weil in Essex Market Court yesterday dubbed him the "meanest in New York." But that wasn't the funniest things said or done in court yesterday. What the tenants laughed at was that Eisen went to the Tombs, and, so far as they could see, there was little prospect of his getting out for some time.

The charge was brought by Mollie Winiger, one of the tenants. She told Magistrate Weil they hadn't had any heat in the house in three months. She reminded the Magistrate that Eisen was sent to the Workhouse for ten days Christmas Day, 1924, by Magistrate Cobb. That was the time, she said, that Eisen had all the flats whitewashed—including rugs, pictures and furniture—when they had asked him to make a few repairs. She added Eisen had been in court ten times and convicted thrice for similar offenses against his tenants.

Magistrate Weil set bond at $500. Five professional bondsmen stepped forward to furnish it and then they saw who the prisoner was.

"We know you," remarked one of them. "We'll never get you out."

That was when the half-dozen tenants in court had their big laugh. Eisen was handcuffed between two drunks and taken to the Tombs in the "Black Maria." He was still there late last night. The $500,000 he is reputed to be worth couldn't get him out, because a prisoner isn't allowed to furnish his own bond.

Down in Pitt Street the tenants were holding a sort of laugh party in the flat of Mollie Winiger. There was Charles Weinberg, who runs the mushroom stand on the first floor and who is suing Eisen for damages. Weinberg asserts that Eisen came into his shop the night of the funeral of his son, Izzy, a month ago, and remarked he was "glad the boy died." The other son, Ben, says Weinberg hit Eisen on the jaw and Eisen broke out the windows. Hence the damages—"$100 a window."

Another tenant at the party was Cecilia Braunselb, married daughter of Mrs. Cooperman, who was there too. Cecelia sued Eisen last December and got $111.50 damages, she said. That was after Eisen had locked her and her two-weeks-old baby out of her flat "for not reason at all," she said.

Then there were Mrs. Milstein and Nathan Filman and Mrs. Schuffelberg and Otto Kron. Each had some incident to relate—how little Rosy caught pneumonia after her cold bath—"no hot water, you see"—or how Mrs. Schuffelberg nearly starved because she couldn't do the washing she took in with cold water.

On the second floor, rear, of No. 90 Wadsworth Avenue, far up in Harlem, lives Eisen, his wife and two young children. It was hard to get a word with Mrs. Eisen, because she kept running from the telephone to the door and back to the telephone calling number after number and groaning "Oh, oh!" all the while.

She paused at last and told a reporter she was trying to raise the bail for "my Joe," but "couldn't find any friends with enough money."

"They locked him up in the Tombs," she wailed, wiping her eyes. "He should be home with his family nights! All day he works—looking after his properties—he should be home at night with his family! Those tenants on Pitt Street—ah, the bad ones! They bother him always, and to-day they put him in jail. He should be home with his family nights!"

FRANCE'S ATTITUDE TO PALESTINE

Aristide Briand, French Prime Minister, delivered an address before the Franco-Palestine Committee in Paris in which he emphasized that Palestine was not a Jewish state, but a national home for the Jews, implying the condition that the rights of the Arab population should be safeguarded.

The French statesman, M. Franklin-Boullion, gave an interview to a representative of the Jerusalem daily "Do'ar Hayom" on his views regarding Zionism. He said that while at first he was a warm supporter of the Balfour Declaration he ceased to believe in the success of Zionism after the first Arab disturbances in Jaffa and Jerusalem. He had then become convinced that the mandatory power was not sufficiently interested in furthering the establishment of the National Home in Palestine in view of the Arab opposition to Zionism. As the position of France as a mandatory power, he did not think that she ought to support a policy which was not sure of success.

M. de Jouvenel, France's High Commissioner of Syria, spent some time in Jerusalem last week and had conferences with the Palestine High Commissioner and other officials. He was also to have met Dr. Weizmann, who is now on a visit to Palestine. It was rumoured that the main purpose of the visit of M. de Jouvenel was to settle some frontier difficulties between Syria and Palestine and it was even suggested that France would cede to Palestine the whole of the Lebanon coast, including the river Litani, which is necessary for the successful carrying out of the Rutenberg Concession.
